

STC Environmental Policy

Sony Deutschland GmbH - Stuttgart Technology Center (STC) defines the following environmental policy for its activities that have the main focus on research and development and include also design and development, sales and services:

1. STC will form and maintain an organization that will promote a variety of environmental protection activities.
2. STC will establish technically and economically viable environmental objectives and constantly seek to enhance the quality of its conservation activities.
3. STC will observe all applicable laws, regulations and agreements related to the environment, including Sony's corporate requirements and guidelines.
4. STC will pursue improvements in all areas of operations, including resource and energy conservation, reduction of waste, and promotion of its recycling.
5. STC will endeavor to use alternative technologies and materials in place of environmentally harmful processes and materials. STC will also collect and guarantee the recycling or treatment of such substances, and take steps to avoid their use.
6. Through environmental audits, STC will continually upgrade its environmental management capabilities and environmental performance.
7. Through education and internal communications, STC will strive to instill a better understanding of its environmental policy and raise awareness of environmental issues among all employees.
